THE WORST OF MASKS.

The ancients in their histrionies devised hideous masks in order to present certain dreadful passions, feeling that nature had not endowed them with the capacity for looking dreadfully enough to suit the emergency. Here is where the "Reverend" WILLIAM H. RAMSCAR IS ahead of antiquity. He is more horrible than Lything art could devise, and ave made a good model for Dorn and wivid suggestion of infernal retribution for DANTE. He has been convicted ; anew, this time for shamefully maltreating a poor old man, who was an inmate he unsectarianly clubbed.

Some one said that the devilish RAMSACE | this announcement of itself guarantees the was "a philanthropist lacking means to lest of material and workmanship.

If you have not already done so cut out and send the following blank, properly filled, less reptile, with no lack of ideas to carry out his philanthropical meanness. His offense is one of those for which the legal punishment seems tearfully in a lequate.

THE BOOKSTAVER INVESTIGATION.

Passion and prejudice should have no share in judicial procedure. But intense aversion to legal criminality and a glowing zeal to redress wrongs perpetrated beneath the ermine should be the attitude of every upright, honorable member of the Bar. Judge BOOKSTAVER is charged seriously. It is the duty of his colleagues to entirely refute this charge if it be false, and to visit the full penalty of his sin upon the erring Judge's head if the charge be true.

Let BOOKSTAVER be heard, by all means. And let the proceedings be public. There is no earthly reason why something in which the entire community has necessarily such an interest should be shrouded in any obscurity. Hear him, but let the people hear him, too. They are as much the aggrieved in this case as the Bar Asso-

CONSUL LEWIS.

The charges made against William Report Lawis, Cousul-General of the United States to Morocco, are so serious that it is impossible for Mr. Blaine to decline action in his regard. FUNERAL OF KING LUIS.

Ceremonies at the Burial of Portugal's Late Sovereign. A singular traditional usage was carried out at Lisbon some days after the funeral the London Times. At three principal places in the city platforms were erected covered with black cloth. A procession passed from one place to the other. The chief municipal officers o. the city and the chies personages of the late royal household, all clad in deep mourning.

ing sad strains.
Four shields, on which were painted the royal arms, were borne aloft on long staves. A multitude of people, all suit-ably dressed, were present, several walk-ing with the procession.

Arrived at the p atform all the principal persons took up their places upon it and one of the shield-bearers, advancing to the front, cried out in a chanting tone,

"Weep, O Portuguese, for your King Dom Luis I, is dead." He then dashed the shield to the ground with such violence that it was shattered.

This ceremony was repeated at the other platforms. Then the procession moved to the church of Santo Antonio da Se, where a solewn requiem service was held. During the whole ceremony all the bells of the city toiled.

An Incandescent Lamp as a Substitute for a Hatter's Block.

An enterprising young electrician in Washington, recently married, who had occasion to spend the evening downtown with some friends from New York, was shocked to find, says the Electrical Review, After-dinner coffee-cups are taller than usual: as he was about to go home, that his new silk hat had, in some unexplained man-ner, become badly rumpled. Shops that "block your hat while you wait" had long been closed, and for a moment Benedict was in distress, but his ingenuity did not fail him. ingenuity did not fail him.

Stepping into a restaurant lighted by electricity he soon found an incandescent lamp attached to a long, flexible conductor, and with this he detty and quickly ironed out the wrinkles from his battered tile and hastened home to his waiting wife.
